Dapper Rat's always got good ideas for the fuzzlets. It was the inspiration for the cages I've built using plastic storage containers. With careful planning, even though the cage is plastic, you can make it so there's no easy way to chew the plastic (and give them better stuff to nibble).

How do you build a large rat cage? - Instructables
There are various cage calculators for rat cages available online. Most people think that about 0.06 cubic meters (2 cubic feet) is the minimum space needed for one rat, but that all rat cages should be large enough to house at least four rats. So, your first criteria for selecting a suitable rat cage is that it is at least 2.4 cubic meters in
